About

The RSVP feature lets you select the sessions you plan to attend in an upcoming event. Once you RSVP, you may be able to add the session to your calendar or receive an email invite, depending on how your organization has set it up.

When you RSVP to a session, it's also added to the My Agenda tab on your profile page (if the tab has been enabled). This makes it easy to find all your upcoming and past selections in one place.

For more details, see My profile page.

- This feature requires the RSVP module to be enabled.
- Calendar and email options may not be available to all users. These features depend on how your organization has configured the RSVP experience.

Once you RSVP:

- The button will update to RSVP accepted.
- You may receive a calendar invite or email, depending on how your administrator has configured the feature.

You can update your selection anytime, wherever the session appears on the site, such as on the session entry itself, the channel it's in, your profile page (under Watch Later), and other locations across the site.

Add to calendar or get an email invite

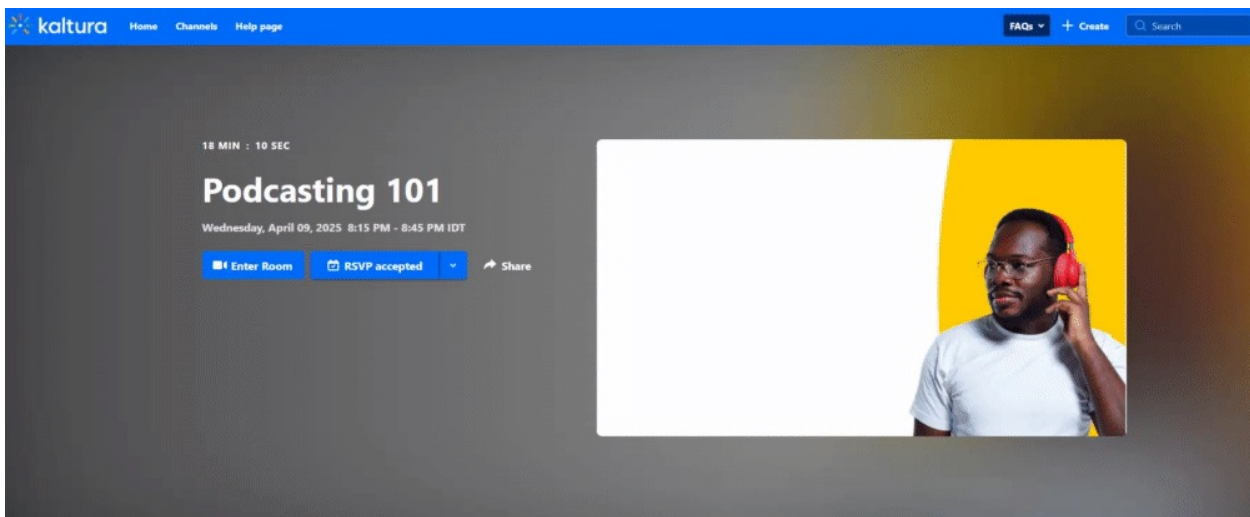

If enabled for your organization, you can:
